

ADJUNCTION

Meaning: Adjunction refers to the act of adding or attaching something to another entity, often resulting in an enhancement or expansion of its capabilities or structure.

1. The adjunction of the new wing to the museum has greatly increased its exhibition space.
2. In mathematics, an adjunction often reveals deep relationships between different structures.
3. The architect proposed an elegant adjunction that blended seamlessly with the original design.
4. During the meeting, the adjunction of various committee members' ideas led to a stronger proposal.
5. The adjunction of modern technology in the classroom has transformed the learning experience.
6. She explained the adjunction of the two concepts in her thesis with clarity and precision.
7. The legal team discussed the adjunction of the new laws to existing regulations.
8. An adjunction in the project timeline helped accommodate unforeseen delays.
9. The adjunction of eco-friendly materials is essential for sustainable construction practices.
10. His paper provided a thorough analysis of the adjunction of historical context to contemporary issues.

Source: sentences.whatistheurl.com

<https://sentences.whatistheurl.com/sentence/adjunction>