

ADMONITORY

Meaning: Admonitory: serving to warn or reprimand, often in a way that conveys disapproval or expectation of improved behavior.

1. The teacher gave an admonitory glance when the students began to chat during the lecture.
2. Her admonitory tone made it clear that she expected better behavior from her team.
3. The report included an admonitory note about the potential risks of ignoring safety protocols.
4. His admonitory remarks served as a wake-up call for the team to improve their performance.
5. She appreciated the admonitory advice her mentor provided before she made a crucial decision.
6. The novel's protagonist received an admonitory letter warning him of the consequences of his actions.
7. The film ended with an admonitory message about the importance of environmental conservation.
8. In an admonitory fashion, the coach reminded the players to stay focused during the game.
9. The article featured an admonitory warning against the dangers of overspending.
10. During the meeting, he delivered an admonitory speech about the need for ethical practices in business.

Source: sentences.whatistheurl.com

<https://sentences.whatistheurl.com/sentence/admonitory>