

ALBIFICATION

Meaning: Albification is the process of turning white or losing color, often observed in the developmental stages of certain organisms or as an indicator of changes in health.

1. Albification can often be observed in certain species during their developmental stages.
2. The albification of the leaves indicated a significant change in the plant's health.
3. Scientists are studying the albification process to understand its genetic basis.
4. Albification occurs when the pigment cells in an organism begin to lose their color.
5. The phenomenon of albification in nature can lead to unique adaptations in various species.
6. In some fish, albification can make them more vulnerable to predators.
7. The researcher noted that albification was particularly evident in the lab's albino specimens.
8. Albification has been documented in various animal populations as a response to environmental stressors.
9. The artist used albification as a metaphor for purity and transformation in her paintings.
10. Throughout history, albification has fascinated biologists and has been the subject of numerous studies.

Source: sentences.whatistheurl.com

<https://sentences.whatistheurl.com/sentence/albification>