

ALL-A-MORT

Meaning: All-a-mort: in a state of utter dejection or despair, rendered speechless or inactive by disappointment.

1. The team's performance in the tournament was so poor that they felt all-a-mort by the final match.
2. After hearing the disappointing news, she was left all-a-mort, unable to find the words to respond.
3. His all-a-mort demeanor made it clear that he had lost all hope in the situation.
4. The unexpected turn of events left the entire community feeling all-a-mort and in shock.
5. She walked into the room, her all-a-mort expression betraying her inner turmoil.
6. The news of the disaster left the volunteers all-a-mort, questioning their efforts.
7. Despite the initial excitement, the project ended up leaving everyone feeling all-a-mort by the end.
8. Their all-a-mort attitudes were a stark contrast to the enthusiasm they had shown earlier.
9. He sat on the bench, looking all-a-mort as he reflected on his recent failures.
10. All-a-mort and weary, they trudged home after the long and grueling day.

Source: sentences.whatistheurl.com

<https://sentences.whatistheurl.com/sentence/all-a-mort>