

ANTHROPOPATHICALLY

Meaning: Anthropopathically refers to the attribution of human emotions and feelings to non-human entities, such as inanimate objects or nature.

1. The novel explores themes anthropopathically, giving human emotions to inanimate objects.
2. In her artwork, she anthropopathically depicted the struggles of nature as if they were human dilemmas.
3. The philosopher argued anthropopathically about the relationship between humanity and the universe.
4. He wrote the story anthropopathically, allowing the trees to express their thoughts on climate change.
5. The film anthropopathically portrayed the ocean as a grieving mother longing for her lost children.
6. They approached the problem anthropopathically, considering the feelings of the animals involved.
7. By interpreting historical events anthropopathically, the author brought the past to life in a relatable way.
8. The poem resonated with readers because it anthropopathically captured the sorrow of forgotten places.
9. In her lecture, she explained how anthropopathically understanding emotions can bridge gaps between cultures.
10. The scientist presented her findings anthropopathically, emphasizing the emotional aspects of environmental degradation.

Source: sentences.whatistheurl.com

<https://sentences.whatistheurl.com/sentence/anthropopathically>