

ANTIPATHIC

Meaning: Antipathic refers to having a strong dislike or aversion towards someone or something, often resulting in hostility or conflict.

1. Her antipathic attitude towards teamwork often created rifts within the group.
2. The antipathic nature of their relationship was evident in their body language.
3. Despite their shared interests, there was an antipathic vibe that lingered between them.
4. His antipathic remarks during the meeting made it difficult for others to express their ideas.
5. She found his antipathic behavior puzzling, given how well they had worked together in the past.
6. The antipathic response from the audience left the speaker feeling disheartened.
7. It was clear that their antipathic feelings towards each other would hinder any collaboration.
8. He approached the situation with an antipathic perspective, unwilling to consider alternative views.
9. The antipathic comments in the debate sparked a heated exchange among the participants.
10. Despite their antipathic tendencies, they managed to find common ground on several issues.

Source: sentences.whatistheurl.com

<https://sentences.whatistheurl.com/sentence/antipathic>