

ATTRIBUTIVELY

Meaning: ATTRIBUTIVELY: In a manner that assigns or relates qualities or characteristics, often used to describe or enhance meaning in communication.

1. She spoke attributively about the historical significance of the event.
2. The author used language attributively to convey deep emotions in the narrative.
3. In her presentation, she cited the research attributively to strengthen her argument.
4. The teacher explained the concept of attributively modifying nouns with clear examples.
5. His comments were attributively linked to a recent study on climate change.
6. The report detailed the findings attributively to ensure clarity in its conclusions.
7. By referencing experts attributively, she enhanced her credibility on the topic.
8. The committee evaluated the proposals attributively, considering their respective impacts.
9. When writing, it's important to attribute sources attributively to avoid plagiarism.
10. The artist's style can be described attributively, reflecting his unique perspective.

Source: sentences.whatistheurl.com

<https://sentences.whatistheurl.com/sentence/attributively>