

CAUSATIVE

Meaning: Causative (adjective): relating to a grammatical structure that indicates one subject causes another subject to perform an action.

1. A causative verb can indicate that one person causes another to perform an action.
2. In grammar, the causative form allows a subject to have someone else do something for them.
3. The teacher used a causative construction to explain how to get someone to help with homework.
4. Causative sentences often include verbs like "make," "have," or "get."
5. The film's plot had a causative effect on the audience, leaving them in tears.
6. Using a causative phrase can add clarity to complex sentences.
7. The causative relationship between smoking and lung cancer is well-documented.
8. In linguistics, causative constructions are essential for understanding agency and action.
9. The new policy had a causative impact on employee productivity.
10. She employed a causative approach to encourage her team to take ownership of their projects.
11. The causative form can express the idea that someone has caused something to happen.
12. In English, we often use causative verbs like "make," "have," and "let."
13. The teacher's encouragement was a causative factor in her student's success.
14. Causative constructions can sometimes be confusing for language learners.
15. He had his car repaired at the local garage, which is a causative action.
16. In some languages, causative verbs have a distinct grammatical structure.
17. The causative effect of the medication was evident within a few hours.
18. She used a causative verb to describe how she got her house painted.
19. Understanding causative sentences is essential for mastering complex grammar.
20. The causative relationship between poverty and education is widely discussed.

