

DECUPLE

Meaning: Decuple (verb): to increase tenfold or to multiply by ten.

1. The company's profits decupled after the launch of their innovative new product.
 2. With a successful marketing campaign, the customer base decupled within a year.
 3. The researchers noted that the population of the endangered species had decupled since the conservation efforts began.
 4. Her investment in the technology startup decupled in value, making her a millionaire overnight.
 5. By implementing efficient strategies, the team managed to decuple their output without sacrificing quality.
 6. The researchers aim to decuple the efficiency of the solar panels by implementing new materials.
 7. In the latest experiment, they managed to decuple the rate of chemical reactions under certain conditions.
 8. The financial projections indicated that the company could decuple its revenue in the next five years with the right strategy.
 9. To decuple the output of the manufacturing process, they invested in advanced automation technology.
 10. Her dedication to training helped her decuple her performance in the competitive sport over the season.
 11. The company plans to decuple its production capacity over the next five years.
 12. With careful investment, they were able to decuple their initial profits within a year.
 13. The team's goal was to decuple their user base by implementing innovative marketing strategies.
 14. She was amazed when her savings account decupled after a series of smart financial decisions.
 15. The research showed that the population of the rare species could decuple if proper conservation measures were taken.
-

Source: sentences.whatistheurl.com

<https://sentences.whatistheurl.com/sentence/decuple>