

DIALECTICALLY

Meaning: Dialectically: in a manner that involves the exchange of opposing ideas or arguments to reach a deeper understanding or synthesis.

1. The two philosophers debated dialectically, each challenging the other's assumptions.
2. In the classroom, the teacher encouraged students to think dialectically about the complex social issues presented.
3. The novel explores the characters' lives dialectically, revealing the tension between their desires and societal expectations.
4. Through a dialectically structured argument, she highlighted the contradictions inherent in the political system.
5. The conference aimed to discuss dialectically the implications of technology on human relationships.

Source: sentences.whatistheurl.com

<https://sentences.whatistheurl.com/sentence/dialectically>