

DISENAMOR

Meaning: To disenamor means to free oneself from feelings of love or affection, particularly in the context of a relationship.

1. After years of feeling trapped in a loveless relationship, she finally decided to disenamor herself from the constant heartache.
2. His attempts to disenamor her of the idea that he would change only pushed her further away.
3. In the quiet of her room, she took a deep breath and began to disenamor herself from the memories that haunted her.
4. The process of disenamoring herself from the past was painful, yet ultimately liberating.
5. It was a difficult journey to disenamor from a love that had once felt so genuine and profound.

Source: sentences.whatistheurl.com

<https://sentences.whatistheurl.com/sentence/disenamor>