

DISPLOSIVE

Meaning: DISPLOSIVE: an adjective describing materials or substances that are designed to explode or cause an explosion, particularly in a safe and controlled manner.

1. The research team developed a new type of explosive that is both more powerful and less hazardous than traditional explosives.
2. During the demolition of the old building, the crew carefully positioned the displosive materials to ensure maximum effectiveness.
3. His expertise in chemical engineering allowed him to create a displosive compound that could be safely used in controlled environments.
4. The military conducted extensive tests on the displosive to evaluate its performance under various weather conditions.
5. She was fascinated by the science behind displosive reactions, particularly how they could be harnessed for both construction and destruction.

Source: sentences.whatistheurl.com

<https://sentences.whatistheurl.com/sentence/displosive>