

DISWORTH

Meaning: Disworth (verb): To undervalue or diminish the worth of one's own or others' achievements or contributions.

1. The ancient manuscript suggested that the act of disworthing one's own achievements can lead to a life of unfulfilled potential.
2. In her speech, she emphasized that we must not disworth the contributions of those who came before us.
3. His tendency to disworth his talents made it difficult for others to recognize his true capabilities.
4. To disworth the efforts of the team would undermine the collaborative spirit they had worked so hard to foster.
5. Many artists struggle with the urge to disworth their work, fearing it won't be appreciated by others.

Source: sentences.whatistheurl.com

<https://sentences.whatistheurl.com/sentence/disworth>