

ENTROPIUM

Meaning: Entropium is a medical condition characterized by the inward turning of the eyelids, which can cause eye irritation and may necessitate surgical correction.

1. Entropium is a rare condition that causes the eyelids to turn inward, leading to irritation of the eye.
2. Veterinarians often encounter entropium in certain dog breeds, requiring surgical intervention to correct the issue.
3. The term entropium derives from the Greek words meaning "to turn inward," aptly describing the condition.
4. In severe cases, entropium can result in corneal damage if left untreated, emphasizing the need for prompt veterinary care.
5. Owners should be vigilant for signs of discomfort in their pets, as entropium can lead to chronic pain and inflammation.

Source: sentences.whatistheurl.com

<https://sentences.whatistheurl.com/sentence/entropium>