

EPIPOLIZED

Meaning: Epipolized: (adjective) describing a geological formation that has undergone a process of layering or alteration, revealing distinct sedimentary layers from various time periods.

1. The geological formation was epipolized, showcasing unique layers of sediment from different eras.
2. Researchers discovered that the ancient rock had been epipolized, revealing its intricate history of transformations.
3. In the lab, the team studied the epipolized samples to better understand the effects of pressure on mineral deposits.
4. The artist's latest work was inspired by the epipolized textures of the local landscape, blending natural and abstract elements.
5. During the expedition, they encountered an epipolized section of the cliff that offered crucial insights into the region's geological past.

Source: sentences.whatistheurl.com

<https://sentences.whatistheurl.com/sentence/epipolized>