

ERYTHROCHROISM

Meaning: Erythrochromism is a rare genetic condition characterized by an abnormal reddening of the skin.

1. Erythrochromism is a rare genetic condition that causes an unusual reddening of the skin.
2. The study of erythrochromism has provided fascinating insights into the diversity of human pigmentation.
3. Researchers are investigating how erythrochromism affects an individual's sensitivity to sunlight.
4. In certain species of fish, erythrochromism can serve as a signal for mating or territorial dominance.
5. Understanding erythrochromism may help scientists develop new treatments for skin disorders.

Source: sentences.whatistheurl.com

<https://sentences.whatistheurl.com/sentence/erythrochromism>