

FACTIONER

Meaning: Factioner: a person who skillfully maneuvers within or among factions, particularly in a political context, to unite or influence groups.

1. The factioner skillfully navigated the complex political landscape to unite the divided groups.
2. As a seasoned factioner, she knew how to leverage alliances to strengthen her position.
3. In a world rife with division, the factioner's role became crucial in fostering dialogue among conflicting parties.
4. His reputation as a factioner earned him both respect and animosity from various groups.
5. The factioner's strategies often involved compromise and negotiation to achieve a greater good.

Source: sentences.whatistheurl.com

<https://sentences.whatistheurl.com/sentence/factioner>