

GLUTINATIVE

Meaning: Glutinative refers to a type of language structure in which affixes are attached to a root word to express grammatical relationships, making it complex for learners.

1. The glutinative nature of the language made it challenging for non-native speakers to learn.
2. In glutinative languages, affixes are often added to roots to convey grammatical relationships.
3. The professor explained how glutinative structures can create long, complex words in certain languages.
4. While English is largely analytic, Turkish is a prime example of a glutinative language with rich morphology.
5. Students of linguistics often find glutinative languages fascinating due to their unique construction of words.

Source: sentences.whatistheurl.com

<https://sentences.whatistheurl.com/sentence/glutinative>