

HALOID

Meaning: Haloid refers to a compound formed from a halogen element combined with another element, often studied for its properties in various applications.

1. A haloid compound typically consists of a halogen and another element.
2. Researchers are investigating the properties of haloid materials for potential applications in electronics.
3. The haloid ions in the solution reacted more vigorously than anticipated during the experiment.
4. In chemistry, the term haloid is often used to describe salts formed from halogen elements.
5. Understanding the behavior of haloid substances can lead to advancements in various fields of science.

Source: sentences.whatistheurl.com

<https://sentences.whatistheurl.com/sentence/haloid>