

IMPOISON

Meaning: To imp poison means to negatively influence or corrupt something, particularly trust or relationships, often through harmful or deceitful means.

1. The scandal of the tainted water supply served to imp poison the community's trust in local authorities.
2. Every rumor seemed to imp poison the relationship between the two friends, making reconciliation nearly impossible.
3. The politician's lies only served to imp poison the public's perception of the entire campaign.
4. As the investigation unfolded, it became clear that the toxic waste had been used to imp poison the local environment.
5. Her jealousy began to imp poison their otherwise harmonious friendship, creating tension and misunderstandings.

Source: sentences.whatistheurl.com

<https://sentences.whatistheurl.com/sentence/impoinson>