

INSTAR

Meaning: Instar: a developmental stage of an insect between molts, characterized by specific morphological and physiological changes.

1. The caterpillar will undergo several molts before reaching its final instar.
2. During the third instar, the larvae exhibit significant growth and increased feeding activity.
3. Entomologists often study the characteristics of each instar to understand insect development.
4. After the fourth instar, the insect will prepare to pupate and undergo metamorphosis.
5. Observing the changes during each instar can provide insights into the species' lifecycle.
