

INTEGUMENTATION

Meaning: Integumentation refers to the biological process and structures through which organisms develop protective coverings or skins that shield them from environmental hazards.

1. The study of integumentation reveals the intricate ways in which organisms protect themselves from environmental hazards.
2. Integumentation plays a crucial role in the adaptation of species to their specific habitats, influencing their survival and reproductive success.
3. The scientist explained how integumentation varies significantly among different animal groups, reflecting their evolutionary paths.
4. Understanding integumentation is essential for advancements in fields like dermatology and materials science, where protective layers are key.
5. Her research on integumentation led to new insights into the development of synthetic skins for medical applications.

Source: sentences.whatistheurl.com

<https://sentences.whatistheurl.com/sentence/integumentation>