INTERPOLATING

Meaning: Interpolating refers to the process of estimating or inserting values between known data points or combining different styles to create a cohesive result.

1. Interpolating between the two data sets allowed the researchers to generate a smoother curve.
2. The artist was interpolating various styles to create a unique blend in her latest painting.
3. In mathematics, interpolating functions can help estimate values between known data points.
4. The software was designed for interpolating images, enhancing their resolution without losing quality.
5. Scientists are interpolating climate models to predict future weather patterns more accurately.

Source: sentences.whatistheurl.com

https://sentences.whatistheurl.com/sentence/interpolating