

IRON-SICK

Meaning: Iron-sick refers to a condition characterized by iron deficiency, leading to symptoms such as fatigue and weakness, necessitating dietary adjustments or supplementation.

1. The patient was diagnosed as iron-sick, requiring immediate supplementation to restore their health.
2. After months of fatigue and weakness, she finally learned that she was iron-sick and needed to adjust her diet.
3. The veterinarian explained that the iron-sick horse would need a special feed to regain its strength.
4. Feeling constantly tired and pale, he suspected he was iron-sick and made an appointment with his doctor.
5. Iron-sick individuals often experience symptoms like dizziness and shortness of breath due to low hemoglobin levels.

Source: sentences.whatistheurl.com

<https://sentences.whatistheurl.com/sentence/iron-sick>