

MANUSCRIPT

Meaning: A manuscript is a handwritten or typed document, especially a draft of a literary work or a scholarly text, submitted for publication or preserved for historical interest.

1. The author meticulously edited the manuscript before submitting it to the publisher.
2. She found an old manuscript tucked away in the attic, filled with handwritten notes and sketches.
3. After years of research, he finally completed his manuscript on the history of ancient civilizations.
4. The manuscript was so captivating that the editor decided to fast-track its publication.
5. She dedicated her evenings to transcribing the fragile manuscript, preserving it for future generations.
6. The author submitted her final manuscript to the publisher after years of research.
7. He discovered an ancient manuscript in the library that changed his understanding of history.
8. After multiple revisions, the manuscript was finally ready for printing.
9. She carefully typed her handwritten notes into a digital manuscript for easier editing.
10. The literary agent praised the manuscript for its compelling characters and intricate plot.

Source: sentences.whatistheurl.com

<https://sentences.whatistheurl.com/sentence/manuscript>