

MISREPORT

Meaning: MISREPORT: to provide inaccurate or false information about an event or situation, often in a journalistic context.

1. The journalist faced backlash after misreporting the facts of the case.
2. It's crucial for media outlets to verify information to avoid misreporting events.
3. The company issued a public apology for misreporting its financial results in the quarterly report.
4. Misreporting can lead to widespread misinformation and damage to reputations.
5. After reviewing the evidence, it became clear that the initial reports had misreported key details.
6. The journalist was fired after it was discovered that she had misreported several key facts in her article.
7. During the investigation, the committee found that the data had been misreported, leading to significant public outrage.
8. He felt compelled to clarify the situation after his statements were misreported by the media.
9. The company's annual report had to be revised because they inadvertently misreported their earnings.
10. Misreporting the results of the study could have serious implications for public health policies.

Source: sentences.whatistheurl.com

<https://sentences.whatistheurl.com/sentence/misreport>