

NOMINALIST

Meaning: Nominalist: a person who believes that universals or abstract concepts are merely names or labels without any corresponding real existence.

1. The philosopher identified as a nominalist argued that universals are merely names without any corresponding reality.
2. In the debate over abstract concepts, the nominalist perspective emphasizes the importance of language and its limitations.
3. While the realist claims that categories exist independently, the nominalist insists that they are merely human constructs.
4. Many nominalists reject the existence of abstract entities, advocating instead for a more pragmatic approach to understanding the world.
5. In his writings, the nominalist challenges traditional metaphysics by asserting that only particular objects can be known.

Source: sentences.whatistheurl.com

<https://sentences.whatistheurl.com/sentence/nominalist>