

OBJECTIVATION

Meaning: Objectivation is the process of transforming subjective experiences into objective realities, particularly in the context of social interactions and philosophical analysis.

1. The concept of objectivation plays a crucial role in understanding how individuals relate to their social environment.
2. In philosophy, objectivation refers to the process by which subjective experiences are transformed into objective realities.
3. Through the lens of objectivation, we can explore how personal identities are shaped by societal expectations.
4. The artist's work exemplifies the objectivation of emotion, turning personal feelings into universally relatable narratives.
5. In psychology, objectivation can help explain how people externalize their internal struggles in various forms of expression.

Source: sentences.whatistheurl.com

<https://sentences.whatistheurl.com/sentence/objectivation>