

OVERBLOW

Meaning: Overblow: to exaggerate or inflate the importance or severity of something.

1. The media tends to overblow the significance of celebrity gossip.
2. His reaction to the minor setback was surprisingly overblown and dramatic.
3. Critics argued that the consequences of the policy were being overblown by the opposition.
4. She often overblows her accomplishments, making them seem far more impressive than they are.
5. The danger of the situation was overblown, leading to unnecessary panic among the residents.
6. The media tends to overblow minor incidents to attract more viewers.
7. Her reaction to the situation was so exaggerated that it felt like she was trying to overblow the issue.
8. It's easy to overblow the importance of a single setback when you're under pressure.
9. The marketing campaign aimed to overblow the benefits of the product, making it seem essential.
10. Critics argued that the film's drama was overblown, overshadowing its genuine moments.

Source: sentences.whatistheurl.com

<https://sentences.whatistheurl.com/sentence/overblow>