

OVERPERSUADE

Meaning: To overpersuade means to excessively convince or influence someone to adopt a viewpoint, often leading to feelings of pressure or discomfort.

1. It's easy to overpersuade someone when you're passionate about your viewpoint.
2. In an effort to win the argument, she tended to overpersuade her friends, leaving them feeling overwhelmed.
3. The marketing team decided to tone down their approach to avoid overpersuading potential customers.
4. He realized too late that he had overpersuaded his colleagues, leading to resentment and pushback.
5. Overpersuading can often backfire, causing the audience to become skeptical rather than convinced.

Source: sentences.whatistheurl.com

<https://sentences.whatistheurl.com/sentence/overpersuade>