

VERRANK

Meaning: To overrank means to assign a higher rank or priority to someone or something than is warranted based on their qualifications or performance.

1. The committee decided to overrank the candidates based on their exceptional interview performances.
2. In his latest analysis, the economist warned against the tendency to overrank certain industries without considering market trends.
3. Her passion for the subject seemed to overrank her lack of experience in the field.
4. During the evaluation, the judges realized they had inadvertently overranked a participant due to their popularity.
5. It's important not to overrank potential risks when making long-term investment decisions.

Source: sentences.whatistheurl.com

<https://sentences.whatistheurl.com/sentence/overrank>