

PHOTOCHROMOSCOPE

Meaning: A photochromoscope is an instrument used to analyze and measure the light absorption properties of materials, particularly how they change color in response to light exposure.

1. The scientist used a photochromoscope to analyze the light absorption properties of various materials.
2. A photochromoscope can reveal how certain chemicals change color in response to light exposure.
3. In the laboratory, researchers relied on the photochromoscope to study the effects of UV radiation on pigments.
4. The intricate design of the photochromoscope allows for precise measurements of light wavelengths.
5. He presented his findings using data collected from the photochromoscope during the experiment.

Source: sentences.whatistheurl.com

<https://sentences.whatistheurl.com/sentence/photochromoscope>