

PREDICATION

Meaning: Predication is the act of asserting or attributing a property or characteristic to a subject within a statement or proposition.

1. The predication of the subject in the sentence is crucial for understanding its meaning.
2. In philosophy, predication often refers to the act of attributing a property to a subject.
3. The logical structure of the argument relies heavily on the correct predication of terms.
4. In linguistics, predication is the part of a sentence that states something about the subject.
5. Her theory on predication challenges traditional views on how we interpret meaning in language.

Source: sentences.whatistheurl.com

<https://sentences.whatistheurl.com/sentence/predication>