

PREPONDERATION

Meaning: Preponderation refers to the state of being greater in number, quantity, or importance, particularly in the context of evidence or opinion.

1. The preponderation of evidence suggested that the theory was more plausible than previously thought.
2. In debates, the preponderation of opinion can often sway the outcome toward one side.
3. Her preponderation of experience in the field made her the best candidate for the position.
4. The preponderation of resources allocated to the project significantly increased its chances of success.
5. A preponderation of factors contributed to the decision, including public opinion and expert recommendations.

Source: sentences.whatistheurl.com

<https://sentences.whatistheurl.com/sentence/preponderation>