

RECIPROCAL

Meaning: Reciprocal refers to a mutual relationship or exchange between two parties, where each provides a benefit or favor to the other, or in mathematics, it denotes a quantity that, when multiplied by a given number, results in one.

1. The two friends agreed to a reciprocal exchange of favors, helping each other with their respective projects.
2. In mathematics, reciprocal functions often help in solving complex equations more easily.
3. The treaty established reciprocal trade benefits that boosted both nations' economies significantly.
4. Their relationship was based on a reciprocal understanding that each would support the other's ambitions.
5. The concept of reciprocal altruism suggests that individuals may act in ways that benefit others with the expectation of future returns.
6. The two countries established a reciprocal trade agreement to benefit both economies.
7. In a healthy friendship, there is often a reciprocal exchange of support and understanding.
8. The teacher emphasized the importance of reciprocal respect between students and educators.
9. Their relationship was built on reciprocal trust, allowing them to confide in each other freely.
10. In mathematics, reciprocal values are crucial for solving various equations and functions.

---

Source: sentences.whatistheurl.com

<https://sentences.whatistheurl.com/sentence/reciprocal>