

RECONVERSION

Meaning: RECONVERSION: The process of changing something back to its original state or adapting it for a new use, particularly in reference to buildings or economic systems.

1. The reconversion of the old factory into loft apartments has revitalized the neighborhood.
2. After the war, the country focused on the reconversion of its economy from military to civilian production.
3. The reconversion process for the former military base was met with both excitement and skepticism from the community.
4. In the wake of technological advancements, companies are undergoing a reconversion to adjust to new market demands.
5. The reconversion of agricultural land for urban development sparked a heated debate among environmentalists and city planners.

Source: sentences.whatistheurl.com

<https://sentences.whatistheurl.com/sentence/reconversion>