

REDHIBITORY

Meaning: Redhibitory refers to a defect in a product that is significant enough to justify the buyer's right to rescind the contract and seek a refund.

1. The buyer claimed that the defect in the car was redhibitory, warranting a full refund.
2. In legal terms, a redhibitory defect allows the purchaser to rescind the contract altogether.
3. The redhibitory nature of the flaws discovered in the property led to a protracted legal battle.
4. He argued that the seller had a duty to disclose any redhibitory issues that could affect the sale.
5. Upon discovering the redhibitory problem, she immediately sought advice from her attorney on how to proceed.

Source: sentences.whatistheurl.com

<https://sentences.whatistheurl.com/sentence/redhibitory>