

REFERMENT

Meaning: Referment: the act of promoting or assigning someone to a higher position or role.

1. The board met to discuss the potential for his referment to a higher position within the company.
2. Her exceptional performance and dedication led to her quick referment after the recent restructuring.
3. The university announced the referment of several faculty members in recognition of their contributions to research.
4. Many employees were excited about the referment opportunities presented in the new organizational plan.
5. His referment to the senior management team was seen as a deserved recognition of his hard work and leadership.
6. The committee discussed the criteria for referment to higher academic positions.
7. His recent achievements in research made him a strong candidate for referment within the institution.
8. She felt that her years of dedicated service warranted a referment to a more prestigious role.
9. The process of referment often involves a thorough evaluation of an individual's contributions and skills.
10. After much deliberation, the board decided to grant her referment based on her exemplary performance.

Source: sentences.whatistheurl.com

<https://sentences.whatistheurl.com/sentence/referment>