

REFLUCTUATION

Meaning: Refluctuation refers to the repeated or fluctuating changes in a measurable quantity, such as water levels or temperature, often in response to external conditions.

1. The scientist observed a notable refluctuation in the water levels of the lake after the heavy rainfall.
2. During the experiment, the refluctuation of the temperature was carefully recorded to analyze its effects on the reaction rate.
3. The stock market experienced a sudden refluctuation, surprising investors who had anticipated a steady decline.
4. After the storm, the refluctuation of the tides created unusual patterns along the shoreline that fascinated local ecologists.
5. Her mood seemed to undergo a refluctuation throughout the day, shifting between joy and melancholy without warning.

Source: sentences.whatistheurl.com

<https://sentences.whatistheurl.com/sentence/refluctuation>