

REGARD

Meaning: REGARD: a feeling of deep admiration for someone or something; also, consideration or attention to a particular matter.

1. She has a deep regard for the environment and advocates for sustainable practices.
2. In regard to your question, I believe further research is needed before we can proceed.
3. The committee held the artist in high regard for her contributions to the community.
4. He was surprised by the regard in which his peers held him, considering his humble beginnings.
5. In regard to the new policy changes, we will schedule a meeting to discuss potential impacts.
6. She has a high regard for her mentor's expertise and dedication.
7. In regard to the upcoming project, we need to finalize our budget by next week.
8. He regarded the painting as a masterpiece that deserved a place in a museum.
9. The committee will meet to discuss the candidates in regard to their qualifications.
10. They held their traditions in high regard, passing them down through generations.
11. She holds her mentor in high regard for his unwavering support and guidance.
12. In regard to your recent performance, I believe there is room for improvement.
13. The committee will meet next week to discuss the proposals with regard to funding.
14. He expressed his regard for the team's hard work during the challenging project.
15. Their friendship has always been characterized by mutual regard and respect.