

SIRRAH

Meaning: 'Sirrah' is a term used to address a man or boy, often implying a degree of familiarity or condescension, typically in a context of authority or social hierarchy.

1. Sirrah, you must remember to address the nobleman with the respect he deserves.
2. The merchant spoke to the young lad, saying, "Sirrah, do you have the goods I requested?"
3. In the old tale, the knight called out, "Sirrah, prepare the horse for our journey!"
4. "Sirrah, you cannot simply walk in without an invitation," the guard warned him sternly.
5. With a playful grin, the jester knelt and exclaimed, "Sirrah, your majesty, your crown is askew!"

Source: sentences.whatistheurl.com

<https://sentences.whatistheurl.com/sentence/sirrah>