

TAUTOLOGOUS

Meaning: Tautologous: characterized by unnecessary repetition of the same idea or statement, providing no new information or insights.

1. The professor pointed out that the argument was tautologous, repeating the same idea without offering new insights.
2. In his speech, he made a tautologous statement that failed to advance the discussion meaningfully.
3. The use of tautologous phrases in everyday language can often lead to confusion rather than clarity.
4. Critics argue that the author's writing is tautologous, as it circles back to the same points repeatedly.
5. To avoid tautologous reasoning, it's important to present ideas in a clear and concise manner.

Source: sentences.whatistheurl.com

<https://sentences.whatistheurl.com/sentence/tautologous>