

TIMESERVER

Meaning: A timeserver is a person who performs their duties with minimal effort or enthusiasm, primarily to fulfill obligations without genuine commitment or interest.

1. The manager quickly realized that the new employee was merely a timeserver, lacking genuine enthusiasm for the work.
2. In a team of dedicated professionals, the presence of a timeserver can be particularly frustrating for those who are truly committed.
3. Despite his impressive resume, his reputation as a timeserver followed him from job to job, affecting his prospects.
4. She was determined to prove that she was more than just a timeserver, willing to go the extra mile to contribute to the project.
5. The company's culture emphasized accountability, making it difficult for any timeserver to thrive in such an environment.

Source: sentences.whatistheurl.com

<https://sentences.whatistheurl.com/sentence/timeserver>