

TRANSCENDENTALISM

Meaning: Transcendentalism is a philosophical movement that originated in the early 19th century, focusing on the belief in the inherent goodness of people and nature, and advocating for self-reliance and individual intuition.

1. Transcendentalism emerged as a philosophical movement in the early 19th century, emphasizing the inherent goodness of people and nature.
2. Many of the key figures in transcendentalism, such as Ralph Waldo Emerson and Henry David Thoreau, advocated for self-reliance and individual intuition.
3. The principles of transcendentalism continue to influence contemporary thought on spirituality and environmentalism.
4. Critics of transcendentalism argue that its ideals can sometimes lead to an unrealistic view of human nature and society.
5. Exploring the writings of transcendentalism can provide valuable insights into the relationship between humanity and the natural world.

Source: sentences.whatistheurl.com

<https://sentences.whatistheurl.com/sentence/transcendentalism>