

VERDOY

Meaning: 'Verdoy' means to become green or lush, typically in reference to vegetation flourishing or thriving, especially with the arrival of favorable weather conditions.

1. The garden began to verdoy with the arrival of spring, bursting forth in vibrant greens.
2. As the rain fell gently, the once-dry fields started to verdoy, promising a bountiful harvest.
3. In the heart of summer, the vines would verdoy, their leaves thick and luscious under the sun.
4. After weeks of drought, the farmers rejoiced as their crops finally began to verdoy again.
5. The lush forests verdoyed with life, teeming with the sounds of birds and rustling leaves.

Source: sentences.whatistheurl.com

<https://sentences.whatistheurl.com/sentence/verdoy>