

WILT

Meaning: WILT (verb): to lose freshness, vigor, or confidence, often due to heat, stress, or pressure.

1. As the sun blazed down, the flowers began to wilt under the intense heat.
2. He felt his confidence start to wilt as the criticism piled up around him.
3. After neglecting the garden for weeks, the once vibrant plants began to wilt and droop.
4. Without enough water, the leaves on the tree began to wilt and change color.
5. She watched the enthusiasm in her teammates wilt as they faced yet another defeat.
6. As the sun blazed overhead, the flowers in the garden began to wilt under the heat.
7. He felt his resolve start to wilt as the challenges before him seemed insurmountable.
8. After weeks without rain, the crops in the field began to wilt, signaling a dire need for water.
9. Her enthusiasm for the project began to wilt when she realized the amount of work involved.
10. With each passing day, the vibrant colors of the painting began to wilt and fade away.
11. As the sun blazed overhead, the flowers began to wilt in the intense heat.
12. She could see the excitement in his eyes fade as his enthusiasm started to wilt.
13. If you neglect your plants, they will inevitably wilt and lose their vibrant colors.
14. During the lengthy meeting, her interest began to wilt under the weight of the endless discussion.
15. The athlete vowed to push through the pain, refusing to let his stamina wilt before the finish line.